UNDER A RIVER AND OVER IT
With "The Sleepy City" On One Side and Wide
Awake World's Fair On the Other
(By The Roving Reporter—Second Installment)
It was the last day of school all along the line, and buses were scurrying hither and yon, carrying children who appeared to be highly elated.
Cement Highways Have It
"Diners" are apparently popular,
for there are many of them in every State through which we rode.
Flower gardens were much more advanced than those back home.
Delphiniums and peonies were in full bloom everywhere.
Cement highways have the call throughout Southern New England,
at least, and as we journeyed toward the Keystone State we were to see hundreds of miles of them, on the four-lane basis. Gold mines—pardon me, I meant gravel banks—are very common. The terms are synonymous. And in the Connecticut River, at Saybrook, a sandsucker was in full operation. A "diner de luxe" in gay red, white and blue colors attracted attention.
"Ketchin's Antiques," read a sign. Ketchin's whom?
Where Gas Is Cheap
The prices of gasoline varied wherever we went, the highest price being $1 for six gallons, and the lowest price eight gallons for 95 cents.
Aroostook Will Laugh Last
Natives of the rural sections
evidently do a considerable business in broilers. I saw some advertised at 60 cents, and some by the pound at 20 cents. "Ship's Lantern" is the name of an eating establishment. Mystic, a noted yachting center, has a large and imposing Civil War memorial. Native strawberries were being offered for sale, but no price quoted. Mystic,
be it known, became a town more than three centuries ago. The large church on "Baptist Hill" attracts attention, its denomination easily guessed.
The sight of potato gardens
abloom brought an exclamation from Gonia who had passed through Aroostook County only a few days previously and saw gardens where potato plants were scarcely above
the soil. But it will be the Aroostook potato which laughs last, and the last laugh is the best one if we are to believe the old adage.
Gas Sonnenburg's Cousin
In Groton we came to a quick stop because of the opportunity to obtain refreshments and I saw a sign over a filling station which read: "Gus Sonnenburg."
"Any relation to the famous wrestler?" I asked.
"A cousin" was the prompt reply.
The city of New London carried Ed's mind back to the days when his vocation was yachting, and again when he was in command of the U. S. Army Mine Planter Royal T. Frank. This city for many years was the home of the late Ralph L. Smith, who was one of my best friends. Had I known where to find him I should like to have called upon Charlie Cables, the well known megaphone man of former days.

HOW FINLAND PAYS
In this locality where there are many Finnish people, we have all felt especially proud of the good sportsmanship shown by that Nation in the meeting of its war obligations. Possibly many have wondered how a comparatively small nation could do this when the wealthy powers fail to meet their just obligations. The Herald Tribune answers the query in the following editorial:
Today Finland once more has the honor of being the only nation to pay its war debt to the United States government in full. Hungary is making a small payment, and Rumania is talking of doing the same. Finland not only is paying every cent, but has done so consistently in lean years and fat.
Few will ask why Finland pays. Every one knows that the Finns are scrupulously honest, and that they pride themselves on carrying out their promises. But many may ask how Finland pays. The answer to this may be found in a few bare facts about what Finland has done during the last two decades.
It has increased its tilled acreage by 28 percent. Yields an acre have increased between 40 and 60 percent. Cows in Finland produce 50 percent more milk than in 1920. The national income has doubled. Industrial production has trebled. The formation of capital has increased. The foreign debt has been reduced from 10,000,000,000 to 1,000,000,000 finnmaks.
What all of this presupposes is not only a spirit of initiative and a devotion to work and thrift on the part of individuals, but policies of placing no obstacles to business and of eschewing all reckless spending by government. The record of Finland in these respects also is so exemplary that no American can read it without blushing—no extravagances, no deficits (except for a brief time in 1930), and a steady decrease in government expenditures in the last four years, with the present level well below the peak of 1928.
What more can be said? The mere recital of these facts shows that Finland's debt payment to the United States is no mere "beau geste," but is illustrative of the Finnish character.
The world would be better to live in if there were more Finlands—and more Finns.
FIRE COMPANY WAS AWAY
Out of Boston comes the story of the house which burned alongside a fire station because the firemen were engaged in a practice drill in a different section of the city. That would have been a laugh in the Boston papers had it happened down here in the sticks.
FALSE SECURITY
From Augusta comes a curious kind of a story to the effect that no work will be done on corn borer control during the summer months—that "the fine co-operation of Maine farmers, plus the expected lack of imported corn" will eliminate the need for it. If the corn-borers are as thick in other parts of the State as they were in our back yard garden last summer, there is still plenty of need for inspection, and for some definite suggestion as to how one can get rid of the destructive pests.
WHAT DO THEY SEE?
There has just been dedicated in Fort Davis, Texas, the McDonald Observatory, second largest in the world, with an 82-inch reflecting telescope. Now that we are having all of these tremendously expensive adjuncts to the study of the heavens will somebody please tell us what they are discovering.
PROPELLER CLUB PRIZES
The Propeller Club essay contest for 1939 has ended, and from far away Genoa, Italy, Charles W. Kallach sends The Courier-Gazette a list of the winners. Included in the list are two Bath girls—Barbara Louise Curran, whose award from the Eastern Steamship Co. was a round trip from Boston to Digby, N. S.; and Geraldine E. Andrews, who won a cash award.
We have smart essay writers here in Rockland, and it is a pity that they could not have been among the winners. But perhaps they are waiting for the 1940 contest.

Get the Low Down On Legislative Session — Other Matters
The 1939 Legislation session has passed into history, and is almost forgotten, but it was revived in graphic manner yesterday when Representative Cleveland Sleeper
and Senator Albert Elliot gave briefly their versions of the session.
Sleeper said he had become known everywhere as "The Clam Chowder Man." The bill was never really introduced, he said, but was simply a publicity stunt from which the State and the clam dealers received a tremendous benefit. One packer said he sold 50,000 more cases
than he had the previous year.
At the outset Sleeper received eight or 10 letters a day, and in the end he and the Maine Development Commission were swamped.
"It was good advertising for the State," said Cleve, "but I don't know whether it helped me. Half of the editorials were against me."
Representative Sleeper said it gave him the "creeps" at Augusta to see the State's money dwindling
and the appropriations increasing.
He explained at some length how the cutting of the Bangs Disease appropriation would hurt the farmer and endanger the consumer. Old age assistance had been solved only temporarily and was growing like an octopus. Maine is almost insolvent now, but the people expect things they are not willing to pay taxes for.
Senator Elliot said that Legislative work was a lot more serious than most folks believe. He discussed some of the vexed questions
which the session had to handle.
The delegation from Knox County brought $84,000 into the County.
Representative William T. Smith of Thomaston was present at the meeting but did not take part in the discussion.
Robert Gregory was designated as the Club's representative at tomorrow afternoon's meeting of the Red Jacket committee.
Joseph Dondis, who recently spoke before the Skowhegan Lions Club, spoke of it as "a jolly progressive organization," and exhibited the certificate he received from it.
A guest yesterday was Alfred Newcombe, formerly of Thomaston, now located in Galesburg, Ill. He spoke briefly, declaring that those who have gone from Maine carry the unforgettable memory of their youthful associations here.

THE MAN FROM WYOMING
Ralph H. Smith Of Cheyenne Visiting Relatives and Friends Back East
A Wyoming motor car parked in front of The Courier-Gazette office
yesterday, and the editorial staff found itself extending a greeting to Ralph H. Smith of Cheyenne—a former Rockland boy who adopted the West 29 years ago, and has been a resident there ever since, except while briefly employed by the Bath Iron Works. With Mr. Smith were his wife, a native of Cheyenne; and his daughter, Miss Catherine Smith, who is employed in the office of Wyoming's Governor. Unless Miss Smith's leave of absence is extended, she will return to Cheyenne shortly, but her parents will prolong their Eastern visit two weeks.
Yesterday they went to Vinhaven, and expect to be there also when the Sequentennial is celebrated.
Coming East—and this was one of the primary purposes of their visit—they stopped off at the World's Fair in New York, and were so greatly delighted with it that they will revisit "The World of Tomorrow" before returning home.
Before transferring his affections
to the West Mr. Smith was employed by the Maine Music Company, the proprietors of which at that time were Leroy F. Chase and the late John E. Lesech.
When he pulled stakes here it was to go with the late Frank A. Magee to Pocatello, Idaho—the latter to become a Post Office Inspector, and the former a clerk in the Pocatello post office. In 1911 Mr. Smith was transferred to the Railway Mail Service, with his home in Cheyenne.
He resigned from the service in 1917 to take a position with the Bath Iron Works, where he remained one year.
Before returning to Cheyenne he was employed for a while by the McDougall Duluth Company in Duluth, Minn. Back in Cheyenne he re-entered Uncle Sam's employ and is now night foreman in the Post Office.
Cheyenne is a city of 25,000, interested in its railroad, airport Fort T. E. Warren (the second largest post in the United States), ranches and cattle raising. The principal crops are sugar beets, corn and grain. Known as "The Magic City of the Plains," Cheyenne takes its name from an Indian tribe which belonged to the Algonquians—the largest family of Indians on the North American continent.
An atmosphere of romance and adventure still clings to Cheyenne,
whose early pioneers relate tales of Indian raids and battles, of "bad men" and Vigilantes, of railroad builders, and of intrepid scouts and hunters who followed vast herds of buffalo and antelope over the nearby prairies.
In the pioneer days, Cheyenne was visited by many notorious characters of whom "Wild Bill" Hickok and Tom Horn were probably the best known. Others of outstanding notoriety, who came here were "Dead Wood" Dick,
"Butch" Cassidy, and his gang from the Hole-In-The-Wall, "Cattle
Kate," "Calamity Jane" and "Poker Alice." Today such characters live only in colorful tales or are impersonated in the annual Cheyenne Frontier Days parade.
From a tent and shanty town in 1867, when it was the "Hell-on-Wheels" western terminus of the Union Pacific Railway, Cheyenne
has developed into a busy cosmopolitan city of beautiful homes, excellent schools, splendid churches and nationally high-rating business firms. It is the headquarters for extensive sheep and cattle interests
and the political heart of the State.
Being on the transcontinental routes of the main Union Pacific Railway, United Air Lines, and the National Trailways Motor System
and at the intersection of four important highways, Cheyenne is the center of a considerable trade territory and is the gateway to three national parks and the Black Hills country.
Wyoming was rescued from Democratic control in 1938, electing a Republican governor and Congressman. Dewey, New York's district attorney, is well thought of as a Republican Presidential candidate;
and the general feeling is that the next election will show a Republican National Administration. The Democrats are in a quandary to know what President Roosevelt is going to do about a third term.
Wyoming has a late spring and a fine clear fall, with a temperature seldom above 90, Mr. Smith says.
The rainfall is only 16 inches a year, and there are few electrical storms.
When Mr. Smith falls in company with one of his best Cheyenne friends there's lots of Rockland talk in the air, because that friend is another Rockland boy, Cyrus Hills,
now prominently identified with the Kansas City Life Insurance. They dug dandelion greens together in the spring, and wondered if Rockland was getting any. When Mr.
Smith's Courier-Gazette arrived
he saw that Rockland was out in front about two days.
Mr. Smith brought along a carload of Wyoming literature.
"When I'm in the East," said he,
"I boast Wyoming, but when I am in Wyoming you never saw a man
more loyal to the good old Pine Tree State."
Mr. Smith is a member of Cheyenne Lodge, No. 1, F.A.M. and the State's No. 1 consistory.
He is enjoying every minute of his stay in the East, and this goes for the feminine members of the party.
Wins Scholarship
Howard Reed, a Lincoln Academy Graduate, Will Enter Boston University
The announcement of 54 scholarship awards to deserving students in New England High Schools, who will enter Boston University in September, is announced by Dr.
Daniel L. Marsh, president of the University and the deans of the three departments in which the students will enroll.
The awards constitute the fourth annual New England scholarships, totaling 21 in 21 communities in four New England States: Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Maine and Connecticut, and 33 sixth annual Metropolitan Scholarships in Boston and 26 surrounding communities.
Awarding of these scholarships is made to students who have made a distinguished record not only in scholarship but also in student leadership during their high school careers. The New England Scholarships provide from $310 to $340.
One of the New England Scholarships goes to Howard W. Reed of Damariscotta, a student at Lincoln Academy. Reed, graduated in 1938 and has been employed in a department store while attending post-graduate term at high school;
excellent high school record; commencement honors; winner of junior prize speaking contest, active in basketball, track and tennis.
PICNIC AT SAGAMORE
The annual rally-picnic of the Knox County Christian Endeavor
was held at Sagamore Park in Camden, Monday. Before a picnic supper, a soft-ball game was enjoyed,
with teams made up of members
from the several groups present.
In the evening the devotional service, held on the rocky shore, was directed by Rev. J. Wesley Stuart of Port Clyde; the singing being led by Rev. Newell J. Smith of Tenants Harbor. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Donald Perron of Thomaston.

THE TEMPLE
"Where do you live?" ask folks I meet,
"Why," I say, "on Pleasant Street."
"That's so," they answer, "we know where."
But tell us, do you like it there?
"Oh, yes, indeed," say I, and then—
"Drop in when you pass by again.
The rooms are large, the hallways wide,
The windows look on every side.
These things I say to folks I meet,
About my house on Pleasant Street.
But what I know as really ME,
Lives in a house folks never see.
It has a door through which I pass,
And windows that are not of glass.
When things are wrong I go inside
And lock the door, and there I hide,
I talk with God in quiet prayer,
My heart is eased of doubt and care.
After I have been made strong—
The things all right that were so wrong.
I come outside, and then folks say,
"You look so bright and well today!"

St. John's Day

Three Commanderies To Celebrate It Happily At Hospitable Vinalhaven

Eminent Commander Robert A. Webster has issued the following orders relative to next Saturday—St. John's Day.

Sir Knights will assemble at the Temple at 8 a. m. where they will be joined by Sir Knights from Belfast and Camden, forming lines for parade to the wharf at 8:30 a. m.

Steamer leaves E. S. S. Co. wharf at 9 a. m. for Vinalhaven where the four Commanderies will join in a joint observance of St. John's Day and the 150th Anniversary of the Town of Vinalhaven.

Returning steamer will leave Vinalhaven at 5:15 p. m.

Tickets are now on sale by the Committee including boat fare, dinner and all entertainment for the day at $5.00. Sir Knights will appear in full Templar Uniform.

If you have no uniform or are unable to parade come and enjoy the day with your commandery.

Lunch will be served to the Sir Knights from Belfast and Camden at the Temple before starting for the boat in the morning. Trucks will transport baggage to and from the boat at Rockland.

A colored man doing a hauling job was told that he couldn't get his money until he submitted a statement. After much meditation he evolved the following bill: "Three comes and three goes, at four bits a went, $3."

It's the greatest sport clothing man or money ever purchased.

Not only the finest for the money but the smartest for the man. That sums up the sport clothes situation this summer.

And that applies to everything from the cool gabardine slacks at $5.00 to the multi-colored tropical worsted suits at $18.50.

Yes... if ever a man had a picnic... it's you.

If ever you saw a little money go a long way... it's here.

Tropical Weights $10.00 to $18.50

Sport Jackets $10.00 to $15.00

Cotton Slacks $1.50 to $3.00

Ensemble Suits $3.00 to $5.00

Jantzen Bathing Suits

V. F. W. Convention

The city of Biddeford entertained the annual Encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in manner exceeding the highest expectations of the visitors. The Convention opened with a meeting on "Credentials and Registration," from which point an enjoyable time was passed until at 10 o'clock memorial tributes were paid to and departed comrades at City Theatre.

John A. Guistin, commander of the Rockland Post of V.F.W. by virtue of being the department chaplain, conducted the exercises. He was highly commended for his mode of action throughout the complete program. Many persons were refused admittance for lack of space. The city dignitaries turned out en masse for these excellent services.

At the conclusion of the program, the Biddeford Post unveiled the most beautiful tableau ever presented during the past 19 years. In reality it was one spectacle of splendor and wonder which will live for ages to come in the memories of those present. The midnight show with ten fine amateur acts enjoyed a capacity attendance.

Department Commander Lane officiated Saturday morning at the first business meeting of the Encampment, but when he noticed that there were only 10 or 12 delegates, he immediately called for eight buglers from one of the Drum and Bugle Corps, and dispatched them to blow Reveille in all hotels and main streets. Within 40 minutes from the first blast of the bugles, the hall was filled with delegates, alternates and department officers.

At the banquet head table, the State officers were seated in this order: Gov. and Mrs. Lewis O. Barrows, Malcolm L. Stoddard, manager of Togus Facility; Charles Emmonds, contact man for Togus Home; Commander of the Biddeford American Legion Post and President of the Auxiliary; the Mayor of Biddeford, two Court judges, a State Senator, V.F.W. Department Commander of New Hampshire and Vermont with their ladies; Charles V. Lane, Maine Dept. Com.; Leroy P. Smith, liaison officer of Togus Administration Facility; Past Department Commander Oliver R. Hamlin, Past Department Chaplain John A. Guistin and a host of other honor guests.

Governor Barrows gave a brilliant address which was heartily applauded. Members of the Biddeford Post labored hard and intelligently in order that the Convention might prove a success and Commander Guistin extended appreciation of their efforts.

The writer of this article attended the spectacular and flashy military ball held at National Hall. A large turnout was registered for church services Sunday morning. At a business meeting later, John Guistin was nominated for department junior vice commander by Past Department Commander Oliver R. Hamlin and nomination was seconded by Past Post Commander Strout of Livermore Falls, the same being greeted with loud cheers. At the election, four other contestants withdrew and the battle was on between Guistin and M. Lufkin. Guistin lost the election but in defeat he proved real sportsmanship.

Will Visit Maine

Cong. Snyder Will Inspect Airplane Bases, Lobsters, Clams, Etc.

Representative James C. Oliver of Maine let Representative Snyder of Pennsylvania know Tuesday that Maine is on the map for an Army air base. Snyder is chairman of the War Department Subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee. Tuesday he told a correspondent for New Hampshire and Massachusetts papers that after adjournment the subcommittee probably would make a tour of suggested air base sites in those States.

"What do you mean going into New England to look at air base sites and not going to Maine," said Mr. Oliver.

"I didn't know you had any sites in Maine," replied Snyder. "I know you have baked potatoes."

"Yes, and lobsters and clams, too, that should not be overlooked, in a tour," said Oliver. "Moreover, we got air base sites which have been included in surveys by the War Department Board that has been surveying air base sites for a couple of years."

"If as and when we make a survey trip, after adjournment, we will certainly include visits to any sites Maine may have to offer," promised Snyder.

and became hero of the Convention, establishing a larger following for next year's battle.

Officers elected from Rockland Post were: Lawrence J. Hamlin, department surgeon; Daniel A. Noonan, department chief-of-staff; Oliver R. Hamlin, department patriotic instructor. The installation exercises held in Elks Home were interesting and impressive, about 500 attending.

Those attending the Encampment were: Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Boynton, Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver R. Hamlin, Albert J. Brickly, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Randlett, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel A. Noonan and John A. Guistin.

It was noted that attendance is steadily increasing. The next annual convention will be held in Belfast.

TALK OF THE TOWN

The Fish and Game Association will have a turkey supper Tuesday June 27, in the Masonic Temple, Rockland, at 6:30. A talk, with moving pictures, will be given by H. L. Mendall of the University of Maine, dealing with woodcock and waterfowl studies in Maine. Supper 75 cents. The meeting promises to be one of exceptional interest.

A representative of this paper talked old times yesterday with Alfred Newcombe of Galesburg, Ill., who is spending a few days at his former Thomaston home. He came East to attend the 25th reunion of his class at Bowdoin College. Mr. Newcombe is teacher of History at Knox College, which by the way is in Knox County, and has a Knox street.

Forrest Bancroft of Lincolnville was before Judge Dinal Tuesday for allowing his dogs to chase deer, after he had received a written warning. He pleaded not guilty was found guilty, and fined $100 and costs. He appealed to the November term, and furnished bail in the sum of $200. All dogs found chasing deer will be shot and owners brought to court.

Hurled 32 Feet

Tragic Fate Of Francis McNamara, Grandson Of Rockland Woman

Francis McNamara, Jr., 10 son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis McNamara of Bangor, died at the Eastern Maine General Hospital last night a short time after being struck by an automobile as he was riding a bicycle near the Holden Town Hall.

The automobile which struck the McNamara boy, according to investigating officials, was operated by Dean Grey of Old Town, a Bowdoin College student. The lad was riding in the direction of Bangor and Frank Rogan, special investigator for the Penobscot county attorney's department, and State Patrolman Dominic Lachance, quoted Stephen C. Hamlin, who was riding with Grey, as saying that the automobile was traveling 55 miles an hour, the two being on their way from Bluehill to Old Town.

Rogan said the boy was hurled 32 feet and that the car continued for 233 feet before it stopped, side-swiping a guard rail.

The McNamara boy was a grandson of Mrs. B. B. Reed of 117 North Main street, who went at once to Bangor upon receipt of the news.

To other Canadian points the rate varies.

A large delegation from Edwin Libby Relief Corps attended the recent convention in Bath and enjoyed very successful and instructive session which had a larger attendance than in the past few years. The Past State Presidents' Annual Banquet was represented by two Rockland members, Mary Cooper and Millie Thomas. Edwin Libby Relief Corps is honored by having one of its most efficient members, Elizabeth Barton, as State president for the coming year. Other local State officers are Alta Dimick, secretary; Millie Thomas, re-elected treasurer for the third year; and Eliza Plummer, third director. Only nine of the State's remaining Civil War Veterans were in attendance and all were present at the campfire, one, the retiring State Commander John W. Palmer of Waldoboro participated in the Grand march. Other State officers are: vice president, Marguerite Duplisse, Gray; conductor, Gladys Hurley, Portland; chaplain, Minnie Ray, Auburn; guard, Ruth Richards, Lewiston; inspecting officer, Ethel Foley, Portland; patriotic instructor, Gladys Ivers, Lewiston.

Alfred Haynes, officer in command of the Maine Inshore Patrol, is having five days' leave, in the course of which he is attending the World's Fair. James J. Spaine, chief boatswain's Mate, is in charge here during his absence.

Maine's Registers of Deeds will hold their annual convention at Lakewood Saturday. Knox Registry will be represented by Register Winslow's highly efficient clerk, Mrs. Helena Coltart, who will accompany Mrs. Lida Taylor, the Waldo County register.

The will of the late Elizabeth I. Burpee was probated Tuesday. It contained a bequest of $2000 for the First Church of Christ, Scientist, and $500 for the Home for Aged Women. There were numerous private bequests in small sums, the bulk of the estate going to Miss Adelaide C. Holmes.

Herbert M. Lord, 2d, son of Col. and Mrs. Kenneth P. Lord, graduated from Bowdoin College Saturday and is now with his mother at her Port Clyde cottage. Lord also had a prominent part in the Shakespearean play "Hamlet." Relatives present were his mother, Mrs. J. F. Cooper of Rockland, and Mrs. L. P. Young and son Thomas of Portland.

Edwin Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Edwards of this city graduated from Bates College Monday, and was historian at the Class Day exercises. Among those present were his mother, Henry A. Howard, Philip Howard and Miss Nathalie Edwards. The young graduate goes next August to France, for a year's stay, as a scholarship award.

Ladies of the G.A.R. recently held a State convention at Bath with Mrs. Bernice Jackson, Mrs. Mary Sistaire and Mrs. Minnie Smith of Fales Circle and Mrs. Lillian Lincoln and Mrs. Addie Harvill of Camden attending from this district. An invitation extended by Col. Eldred to visit the Bath Iron Works, after the meeting, was promptly accepted and proved novel and interesting. Mrs. Jackson was elected senior vice president of the department of Maine, and Mrs. Sistaire was chosen delegate to the National convention to be held in Pittsburg, Pa. in the fall.

Samuel Curtis, 19, of Ash Point was a respondent in Municipal Court yesterday charged with assault and battery upon Dr. Robert L. Emery of Winchester, Mass., at Rose Hill Farm. The scrap resulted when the young man protested the slaying of his pet dog, which it was shown in the testimony had been "worrying" sheep on Dr. Emery's farm. William McConnell who acted in the role of peacemaker met with the inevitable result, on this occasion the loss of a tooth. Curtis had his choice of serving 30 days in jail or paying $20 and costs. He appealed and gave bail. Burrows for the State; Tirrell for the respondent.

DAIRMEN'S FIELD DAY

To Be Held At Highmoor Aug. 5—Two Hundred Head Expected

The third annual Dairymen's Field Day will be held at Highmoor Farm in Monmouth, Aug. 5.

The show, sponsored by the Maine Dairymen's Association, Maine Livestock Association, Extension Service and Department of Agriculture met with complete approval last year, with the result that it has become a permanent feature of the agricultural calendar.

A 500 foot tent has again been secured to house the cattle and present interest points to a capacity showing of Maine's finest milk cows.

A change in classes has been made, show officials announced, so that each cow will have an equal chance to win top honors regardless of the competition. During the last two shows the cows were judged in competition for type and production while this year premiums will be made on the cows production record as well as the type of breed.

Approximately 200 head of the best milk cows in Maine will compete and should attract dairymen from all sections of the state.

"Building a Better World"

Under the direction of Miss Ella Simmons, Mrs. Reta Coburn, Mrs. Avis Norwood and Mrs. Susie Oxtan, children from the Baptist Church school presented an interesting and colorful program Sunday night, the theme of which was "Building a Better World." Principal parts were taken by Mrs. Reta Coburn, Robert Wyllie, Harvill Crockett, Emerson Crockett, Alfred Wilson and Valerie Robinson.

Appearing in the flag drill were Arthur Jenkins, Phyllis Payson, Faith Payson, Norman Peabody, Ruth Pease, Mary Berry, Bernice Melvin, Diane Merrill, Jean Merrill, Louise Perry, and Avis Gammon. The "peace bridge" between Canada and the United States was represented by Phyllis Payson, Jean Merrill and Lucile Perry.

In the candle light service given by the Junior department were Patricia Martin, Page Martin, Lois Norwood, Mary Norwood, Ruth Pease and Bernice Overlock. A Father's Day acoustic was presented by the primary department, these children reciting: Barbara Perry, Avis Gammon, Arthur Jenkins, Faith Payson, Phyllis Payson, Norman Peabody, Bernice Melvin, Diane Merrill and Jean Merrill. A recitation was given by Ann Norwood.

The service was conducted by Chester Wyllie and the Scripture reading was by Alfred Wyllie.

FRIENDSHIP

The Knox and Lincoln County Conference of the Second Advent Christian Church will be held in Sunshine June 22-25. There will be free entertainment and several speakers. Special music has been arranged.

Mrs. Eula Morton and son Albert have returned from Gorham.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Haley of Woolwich were guests Sunday of Llewellyn Oliver.

The South Waldoboro Union Aid was entertained recently by the Baptist Circle at the Lawry cottage at Forest Lake. Mrs. Josie Lawry was hostess assisted by Circle members.

Children's Day exercises were held Sunday morning at the Methodist Church, the intermediate and primary grade pupils taking part. Mrs. Roscoe Simmons and Carrie Lawry deserve much credit for this part of the program. The church was artistically decorated with a profusion of lilacs, potted plants and fir trees. Music consisted of choral selections, a solo by Marjorie Winchenbach, a duet by Phyllis MacFarland and Eva Russell with choros ensemble, Llewellyn Oliver was in charge of the music and decorations.

The Farm Bureau will meet Friday at the home of Gertrude Oliver for an all-day session. Dinner will be served at noon by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Roscoe Simmons. Home lighting will be studied and a demonstration given by Miss Esther Dunham of Rockland.

Kindness is just as catching as kindness.

EDUCATIONAL QUIZ

This information service is brought to you by special arrangement with Teachers College, Columbia University, New York City. Questions on education may be submitted through this newspaper.

Question: My daughter wishes to secure library work when she finishes High School. I understand that most if not all such positions are secured through Civil Service Examinations. I would like to know what High School course she should take to prepare her for such a position.

Reply: Librarianship is coming more and more to demand a college education. In addition at least one year of training in an accredited library school is being required, though some libraries do maintain training classes for the lower classes of work in their own service.

The American Library Association has set up a board to inspect and accredit library schools. This board publishes each year a list of accredited schools, with some information about each which may be had by writing to the Association, 520 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

Any high school student interested in library work should write for this pamphlet and plan his high school program in accordance with the entrance requirements of the appropriate library school.

High school years should be filled with general reading, with developing an intimate knowledge of books. It should be possible to get into the school library as assistant or monitor and gain some actual experience in the work.

Most library schools assist in placing their graduates. Many state and municipal libraries are now filled from eligible lists established by Civil Service Examinations. An examination is given for library page or clerk which does not require special training and is open to high school graduates.

A recommended book on this subject is "Careers for Women by Catherine Filene Houghton Mifflin, 1934.

Question: What are the figures on serious crimes (murder, robbery, etc.) committed by youth as compared to those committed by other age-groups?

Reply: Figures published by the New Jersey Juvenile Delinquency Commission relating to a study of this problem in New Jersey indicate that the proportion of persons 16 to 20 years of age arrested for serious offenses (criminal homicide, robbery, aggravated assault, larceny, etc.) is higher than for any other age group. In 1936 the rate of arrests for such offenses per 10,000 persons of each age-group was: 85 for those aged 16 to 20; 63 for those aged 21-24; 50 for the 25-29 group; 33 for the 30-40 group; 28 for those aged 35 to 44, and 12 for all 45 or over.

Of the total arrests for serious offenses in 52 New Jersey cities in 1936, 29 percent were of persons 16 to 20 and 16 percent of persons 20 to 24. National figures indicate that this condition is national and not merely local. Of all arrests for serious crimes in 1936, 27 percent were of persons under 21 years. Of the arrests for all offenses only 17.3 percent were of persons under 21.

Question: How do high school students of superior mental ability differ in interests and activities from those of inferior mental ability?

Reply: According to a study made by Dr. G. M. Blair of the University of Illinois it was found that high school students of superior mental ability were generally more active in school affairs than those of inferior ability.

They more frequently had hobbies, read more books on biography, history, science, and travel, preferred generally such outdoor sports as hunting, fishing, boating and camping instead of competitive school athletics. It was found that the more gifted students were far more interested in world affairs than the less gifted students.

Of those studied many superior pupils were school officers and leaders, whereas practically none of the inferior pupils were in these categories. On the other hand, inferior pupils took part in sports and athletics much more frequently than the gifted pupils.

Reading, building models of airplanes and boats, photography and writing were the favorite hobbies of the gifted pupils. Boys in the ungifted group listed collecting most often as their hobby; the girls listed sewing, knitting, and cooking.

31.8 percent of the mentally inferior boys under study listed mathematics as their favorite subject as compared to only 8 percent of the inferior boys. Shop was the best liked subject of the mentally inferior boys, and home economics of the mentally inferior girls. English was given as the preferred subject by the superior girls.

Question: Where can I obtain information about negro education in urban areas?

Reply: The National Urban League, 1133 Broadway, New York City, has compiled a list of source materials on the urban negro in the United States from 1910 to 1937. It also publishes the magazine "Opportunity," a journal of negro life, and operates information service to answer specialized questions.

Question: To what extent should initiative and determination of School Policies be left to students?

Reply: "A school is concerned with the development of a pupil's initiative. This development may occur in class, and as schools are now organized it frequently finds a favorable opportunity for development in the school's extra-curricular activities." Elbert E. Fretwell, Professor of Education at Teachers College, Columbia University points out.

"Under wise guidance, pupils can participate with profit to themselves and the school in the formation of school policies. This participation doesn't at all necessarily insure wiser policies but can furnish a favorable opportunity for pupils to understand policies and to learn how to face and analyze problems and to go as far as they are able to in proposing wise solutions.

The purpose of pupil participation in formation of policies is primarily for the education of the student. The extent to which they can participate is of course determined by their ability, their previous experience and the quality of guidance that they receive from the school.

Pupil participation in no way relieves the principal or the school authorities of responsibility for everything that happens in the school."

EDUCATIONAL CLUB QUIZ

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:— Since W. A. Holman of Portland in your Saturday issue estimates 61,000,000 are U. S. church members, these are naturally interested in the next Educational Club quiz: Should our aim be to be broad-minded or to be narrow-minded? Does Matthew 7:13, 14, throw any light on this puzzling modern problem which reads:—"Enter ye in at the strait gate for wide is the gate and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction and many there be which go in thereat. Because strait is the gate and narrow is the way which leadeth unto life and few there be that find it." How great a compliment is it then to be called "broad?" Mail bag answers for Courier are requested. Mary Perry Rich

John Karl has returned from Boston where he has been employed for several months.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan E. Whitney have returned from a fortnight's outing at Cold Stream Narrows.

Mrs. Luda Mitchell who has been making an extended visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Bigelow, in Pittsfield has returned home.

The Garden Club meets Friday at 7.30 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Heistad in Rockport.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Stinson of Swan's Island have taken apartments at 15 Summer street.

M. W. Weymouth and family have returned to Alfred after visiting Mrs. Fred T. Veazie.

Mrs. Jennie A. Heal of Mechanic street, Camden, announces the engagement of her daughter, Doris Evelyn to Lawrence J. Dandeneau of Rockland.

The Woman's Educational Club was entertained by Mrs. Nina Gregory at her home at Glen Cove. The meeting was opened by the president Mary Perry Rich and a discussion of the visit of the King and Queen to the United States followed. Plans were made for placing a marker at the foot of Warren street for the Clipper Ship Red Jacket built in the shipyard in that vicinity. Mrs. McCullen read one of her poems which was greatly enjoyed by the members. Mrs. Nettie Stewart gave two humorous readings. Evening session opened with a discussion of the World's Fair after which the speaker of the evening Captain Ralph J. Polard of Waldoboro gave the club a fine address on conditions in Europe today as he sees them. He said that France and Germany had been enemies since the time of Caesar and probably would keep up the quarrel and that hate, fears, jealousies in the different countries were a great cause of war. Germany is the dominant nation of the world today. Hitler has built Germany up to its present state but his methods are not approved of and it is hard to say what he will do next. An open forum was held after the address. Mrs. Zaida Winslow, treasurer, gave her report on the membership drive.

Miss Vera Thompson is having a fortnight's vacation from Woolworth's.

T. and E. Club members met for sewing and luncheon Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Sumner C. Perry.

Mrs. Harriet B. Knowles of Park Drive, Boston, formerly of Rockland announces the engagement of her daughter Emma to George Bessey of Danvers, Mass.

The "Lobster Pot" in Friendship was the scene of a merry party when the "Monday Nites", assembled to devour one of those luscious lobster feeds before their summer interim. All members were present, and before the repast was over one girl got her name changed to "Billy"? The losing of a "button" caused much concern before and after the meal—and was recovered by a valuable member who, during the evening presented the rest with an original poem which was unanimously adopted as the club motto. After signing the Register the members departed in their respective cars and landed at "Dorians" in Thomaston where they did justice to all flavors of that noted cream. Those in the party were Mrs. Christella Russell, Mrs. Hattie Brown, Mrs. Agnes Hooper, Mrs. Elizabeth Mills, Mrs. Susan Bowley, Mrs. Vivian Kimball, Mrs. Pearl Huntley, Miss Doris Hyler, Miss Virginia Post, Mrs. Cecil Murphy, Mrs. Elie Knowlton, Mrs. Bernice Hatch, Mrs. Isabelle Anastasio and Mrs. Ariniese Mills.

Ballard School Commencement

The annual Senior-Alumni banquet of the Ballard Business School was held Monday night at Temple hall under most auspicious circumstances with 80 attending the banquet besides the 11 graduates. Many more joined the party for the dance which followed with Dean's Orchestra providing music. Golden Rod Chapter O.E.S. catered for the excellent turkey dinner.

The post prandials were charming. The history was presented by Janet Wade. Lawrence Yates made the amusing prophecy and Arlene Winchenbach presented the gifts, co-operating with Hope Bowley. The address to undergraduates was made by Ruth Lenfest and the class poem was written and presented by Mary Brown. Winifred Dimick read the class will, making many amusing bequests.

The address of the evening was by Principal Nellie R. Ballard, brief but sincere and rich in kindly wisdom and advice. Following this she presented diplomas to the 11 young people pictured and named above, the first class to complete their work in the school's fine, modern new home on Limerick street, this city. Community singing was led by Byron Knowlton with Gertrude Heal at the piano.

The alumni session held marked interest and showed considerable activity to be in order. These officers were elected: President, Nathalie Jones; vice president, Helen Rogers; secretary-treasurer, Dorothy Dimick; executive committee: Samuel Dow, Doris Heal and Pearl Knight.

The class ode was written by Arlene Nelson and Ethel Johnson.

The Knox County Scribblers' Club will meet Monday morning at 11 o'clock at Mrs. Edna McKinley's cottage in Union.

Frank Blackington, who for eight months has been critically ill at his home, 95 Union street, is now able to see friends.

Gordon Flint was home from Cambridge, Mass., for Fathers' Day, visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Flint.

Mrs. Ross Matthews and Mrs. C. Waldo Lowe of Shelburne, Vt. are spending the week with Mrs. Lowe's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert R. Marsh.

This And That

By K. S. F.

One often wonders if the unexpected vicissitudes of life do not make the years all the more worth while? Each day has its stimulus in wonderment of what next? What great adventure will come to light? Life really is a question mark. It is the older ones who are continually asking, "Why and wherefore?" The younger generation take it all in the day's work. There is no monotony to life in this age but much to be happy and thankful for in all its vagaries.

Oh! who will tread the fields with me?

A healthful venture it may be. Perchance a faun in magic robe Will spring to action at the noise. Our feet on crackling bits alarm With ears alert—and so absurd Our hearts are touched at his dis-turb.

How little one knows or wants to for that matter about bats. When they want a good, long invigorating rest, they attach themselves to some tree or underpart of a shed or building and go to sleep with heads hanging down. They love caves or damp, dank places but the upside down position is their choice. They have very long, sharp claws that penetrate wood or earth. They are vicious if attacked and will bite with very sharp teeth, but harmless if left alone. Owls are said to be their deadliest enemies.

Now watch for the Grecker casualties.

Mrs. Frank Harding has returned from Farmington where she attended commencement exercises at the Normal School, her daughter Miss Emma Harding being one of the graduates.

Mrs. W. Seymour Cameron entertained members of Dessert-Bridge Club at picnic luncheon and social time Wednesday at Megunticook Lake.

At the final meeting of the season of Anderson Auxiliary a report of the recent convention in Bath was given by Mrs. Clara Payson. Compliments for Anderson Auxiliary on the splendid work was heard from all departments only their substitutes being used on the regular staff of officers. A splendid tribute was paid to the junior past department president Mrs. Mae Cross in the many beautiful gifts from the convention officers as well as the personal gifts. Mrs. Cross is one of the most ardent workers for the Auxiliary, both at home and in the Department. Mrs. Stella McRae was the efficient musician for the ceremony.

Ruth Mayhew Tent met Monday night to dispose of business and hear the delegates report of the 27th annual convention in Bath. Ada Payson, Inez Packard, Mae Cross and Doris Ames were delegates. Others in attendance were Maude Cables and Bessie Haraden, tent president, Mary Cooper, Lizzie French, Carrie House, past tent presidents and Eliza Plummer Past Dept. president. All sessions were largely attended and both receptions were events to be long remembered. Mrs. Mae Cross, D. P. of the Auxiliary to S.U.V. gave greetings to the D.U.V. Eliza Plummer responded and highly complimented the work being done throughout the State, in co-operation with other patriotic orders. The press correspondents reward came to Rockland in the possession of Mrs. Plummer.

HAVENER-TABOR

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Tabor of Arlington, Virginia, announce the marriage of their daughter, Rachel, to John Franklin Havener, son of Mr. and Mrs. V. O. Havener of Morgantown, W. Va.

The wedding took place at 7.30 o'clock on the evening of June 9, with Rev. Perry Mitchell officiating. The bride wore an ensemble of white and shell pink with white accessories. She was attended by Miss Ruth Smith of Arlington and the groom by George Lamar of Washington, D. C. The bride's parents and her sisters were present.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Havener left immediately for a months tour of unannounced destination. Upon their return they plan to reside in Washington, where the groom is employed in the Field of Economic Research in the Washington offices of the Consolidation Coal Co.

Mrs. Havener graduated June 5 from the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina. Mr. Havener attended West Virginia University and Carnegie Institute of Technology and is a graduate of the former class of 1933.

The bridegroom is a grandson of Nathan F. Cobb of Rockland and a son of Vere O. and Emma Cobb Havener.

Field And Stream

Augusta, June 20.—When the black bass season swings wide open on Wednesday the 21st anglers should find fishing at its very best. The late start of the season affected this specie as well as others and they are just beginning to really bite in any number of lakes and ponds. Flyfishing has been the only legal method since June 1st. From now on the boys should have their best luck with a fly rod using streamers, bass flies, bass bugs or artificial mice—trotting or still fishing with live minnows, helgramites, frogs or worms—bait casting with all types of plugs and a wide variety of spinners used either by themselves or attached to pork rind or other baits. Bass will be your best bet during late July and August.

Fishing is holding up well at Moosehead Lake and in the Moose River. The prize of the month was taken in Spencer Bay by Clifford North of Andover, Mass.—a beautiful 8½ pound landlocked salmon. Frank McKenzie of East Outlet Camps reports 136 fish landed there in a day while O. Z. Pahey of The Birchies states that his guests are keeping the ice box full. He says that the Grey Ghost has been the most successful salmon fly used on the lake this year. Governor Lewis O. Barrows and his sons Wallace and Edward, spent several days at Wilson's West Outlet camps catching their limit.

Chief Warden Raymond Morse of Ellsworth has excellent reports on the brown trout fishing in Branch Pond near that town and considers it the best in the State. Eighteen fish brought in Sunday averaged a little under five pounds each and William Hanson of Pittsfield, Maine set up a new record when he landed a 11½ pounder. There are also salmon and togue in this water. Fishing is not too extensive.

Morse also reports lots of bass in Big Lake down in the Grand Lake Stream country. He says there is a nice run of Atlantic salmon in the Narraguagus River at Cherryfield and striped bass in that stream and the Union river.

Native anglers are having a good time with the Narraguagus salmon but trouble with logs and other obstructions in the river. Morse believes that a little work in clearing this stream and repairing fishways would make it an excellent place for fishing. A while ago Inland Fisheries and Game Commissioner George J. Stobie announced that his department would survey the Narraguagus to ascertain the amount of work necessary.

Some of the boys in a figuring mood estimate that for every fish taken from Maine waters at least 10 are put back as a result of the Inland Fisheries and Game stocking program. This year 14,000,000 trout and salmon eggs went into the rearing stations and will be released throughout the year. Only fingerling and legal size fish are planted. Of course no record is kept of the fish taken by anglers but it is safe to say that if the propagation program continues to grow and with newer and increasingly successful methods Maine fishing will continue to get better and better.

A while ago A. M. Whittum of Atlantic, Mass., took an 18½ pound togue from 1st Deacons Lake near Millinocket to become a member of Maine's "The One That Didn't Get Away Club." It took him 80 minutes to land the fish and today he revealed why. He was hooked in the side and through the top of the back fin. This gave him plenty of chance to thrash around. The togue missed the lure with his mouth.

A lot of rain in the Jackman region has resulted in high water in Big Wood and nearby ponds which hasn't helped fishing any. However, Arot Henderson of Henderson's Camps says it is beginning to lower and he expects to see some good catches during the next few days.

S. E. Townley, veteran Newark, N. J., angler is back at Moosehead Lake at the Birch and reports that he has never had better luck in 20 years of Maine fishing. He has fished mostly in Moose River and took 30 fish on a fly in nine days. The largest weighed 5 pounds and 7 weighed from 4½ to 5 pounds. He says Myron Smart of Rockwood is the best guide he has ever had.

The Maine tuna situation will be thoroughly discussed at Portland this month when the Maine Tuna Club holds its annual session. Secretary Art Reed reports that the number of inquiries from out of State anglers is breaking all records.

"The time will come," shouted the speaker, "when women will get men's wages."

"Yes," said a little man in the corner, "next Saturday night."

sign to mar the vista. No wayside inns, no filling stations. And bicycle riding is not tolerated. Motorists would find it an earthly Eden were it not for the omnipresent State patrolmen, who materialize out of nowhere if the motorist lapses in the slightest degree from the fixed rules. We were taken to task twice for minor infractions, and each time we parted with the trooper in the best of spirits.

Mountain Laurel Waning
I must not fail to mention the mountain laurel, still a delight to the eye in spite of the fact that its brief season is nearly over. My introduction to this beautiful outdoor shrub was made on the Mohawk Trail two years ago, and I have been very enthusiastic about it ever since.

We entered New York State Friday afternoon at 120 o'clock, via Darien, New Canaan and Stamford. Ed chose to make our departure for Philadelphia by the way of that famous institution known as the Holland Tunnel, but before we locate this under-river thoroughfare, we see a great deal which goes toward making our National Metropolis famous. But of course I am not going to weary readers with such detail, mentioning merely Grant's Tomb, the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, which contains those marvelous monoliths quarried at Vinalhaven, and the famed skyline which recently intrigued the King and Queen of England. Ocean liners at the docks, and a United States cruiser riding the river channel.

Riding Under the Hudson
Many readers of The Courier-Gazette have passed through the Holland Vehicular Tunnel, but for the benefit of the many thousands who have not had that privilege let me say a few words.

The tunnel consists of twin tubes under the Hudson River 9250 feet in length from Canal street, Manhattan, to 12th street, Jersey City. It was opened to commercial traffic Nov. 13, 1927. The work started Oct. 12, 1920. Some idea of its commercial importance may be judged from the fact that two years after the tunnel was opened—in 1929—it was used by 10,977,910 vehicles. Late figures, if they were available, would be most astounding.

Each tube has an external diameter of 29 feet, 6 inches and an interior roadway width of 20 feet. The clearance height is 13 feet, 6 inches.

The cars must ride at a distance of 75 feet apart, the speed on the rise at either end being limited to 30 miles an hour. A conspicuous sign reads: "Do Not Blow Horns." A Rockland friend told me how he thought he would blow his horn a little easy to see what would happen. Immediately the long tunnel resounded with a terrific din, as the tunnel echoed and re-echoed. And when my friend emerged from the tube it was to find himself in the custody of a State cop who used real strong language to him.

Answer To a Question
On our southward journey to Philadelphia we found the tunnel comfortable as to temperature and ventilation, but returning to New York the air was rather uncomfortably hot and close.

We fell to wondering what would happen if a car had a flat tire or engine trouble, and my friend who experimented with the horn told me. Guards are stationed at frequent intervals in the tunnel and when any mishap occurs lights are flashed which warn motorists outside not to enter the tunnel, and a wrecking car is speedily on the spot. ## A Royal Send-Off

Will Be Given MacMillan When He Sails For North Next Saturday

Commander Donald B. MacMillan and his crew of student sailors will get a royal send-off when they leave Boothbay Harbor Saturday afternoon to study glacial movements in Disko Bay within the Arctic Circle. The entire community is co-operating under the leadership of Clark Rowe to make this a gala event. Included on the program is a visiting warship, a parade through the streets and colorful farewell ceremonies on the library lawn with the speakers including author Richard Hallett, Governor Lewis O. Barrons, author Lowell Thomas and Sea and Shore Fisheries Commissioner Arthur R. Greenleaf.

Promptly at 3 o'clock the sturdy Bowdoin will swing away from the dock and will be escorted out of the harbor in a spectacular marine parade including yachts of all descriptions and the warship. Last year more than 150 boats participated.

Commander MacMillan states that he will sail as far north as 70 North Latitude and that the principal work will consist of a study of a big glacier which dumps huge icebergs relentlessly into Disko Bay. This glacier is said to move at the rate of 50 to 100 feet a day and is the main source of bergs that harass North Atlantic shipping during the spring and early summer. Last year the Commander and his crew counted more than 500 of the huge masses of ice floating into the shipping lanes.

Special permit has been given by the Danish government for this study. Chan Waldron, Tufts College student who was with the expedition last year will supervise the work and has been training during the past few months under the direction of Bradford Washburn, Alaskan mountain climber and executive director of the New England Museum of Natural History.

ON MANY SHIPS IN MANY WATERS

Reminiscences Of Service In U. S. Navy, Told
By Lieut. R. L. Jones, U. S. N., Retired

Fourth Installment

We went to Cork, Ireland and found there had been trouble there a short time before. A great number of buildings had just been burned by a group of discontented natives. The names of the streets in this town were in both English and Gaelic, the store fronts were worded the same way. We did not wander far out of the Cork because Admiral Sims had made some remark that did not make us very popular in that country.

We visited St. Patrick's Cathedral, and took a trip out to see the Blarney Rock at Blarney Castle. The castle has a stone around the roof with openings that are not very large, and it is through one of these that a person has to crawl and then lay upon their back to see the much talked about rock. I was told by a man who lived near there that the rock came from the field nearby that also gave up all the other rocks that the castle was built with.

Going and coming from the castle, I rode on a jaunting car. It was a wagon in which the people sit sideways instead of looking ahead. The people I saw about me were not clothed very heavily and the children I passed had no shoes on. They thought that it was warm, but I found it cold and had to wear an overcoat for the trip.

After a short stay in Cork, we were ordered to Portsmouth, England, and there received orders to sail for Germany. We got to Heligoland in time to take a hand in destroying the strong fort situated there. From there we headed for the Kiel Canal. Here we were refused admittance, but when Admiral McCully gave them 24 hours to open it up to us, they couldn't open it up fast enough for us. That was one of the greatest sights I saw in Europe. The Canal is paved with stone, and the grass grows right up to the edge of it. Cows were grazing all along it and one could never believe that these people had just fought and lost a war.

At Friedrichsort the people turned out in large groups to see us. Several of them came on bicycles of which the tires consisted of thread spools around which cotton had been wrapped. The people were very much in need of soap, so the crew brought out large bars of salt water soap and covered small bars which they cut from the original bars, with talcum powder to make it smell nice. With a bar of this soap they could make a trade for anything of great value. The sailors carried strings of it around their necks and would pull off a piece whenever they found something they wished to trade for.

From here we sailed to Danzig. Here we found beautiful buildings that had been built hundreds of years before. Everything had not been settled in Danzig at that time, as the city was going to be made into a free port, and the Germans did not like it. It was here that I met the former German prisoner. He said that he had seen me in Harwich, England, and we talked for quite a while. Before leaving I did him some favors for himself and his family and he gave me a beaded bag, which I still have. I later found out that it was very expensive due to the workmanship in it.

After Danzig, came Libau, Latvia. We were looking for American soldiers who had died in this country. We found the bodies after much inquiring and put them into coffins that we had taken along with us. The bodies were buried after having been stripped of their clothing, because clothes were scarce during the war. One man we had exhumed proved too large for any of the coffins that we had with us, and while we were discussing how we could find one large enough for him, a native walked up to us with a spade and said that he would hack the legs off so that he could be put in the coffin. Here amber is very cheap. Meerschum pipes were manufactured here and everyone bought one.

Riga was the next city we went to. The Germans took this city after the Russian Government collapsed, by attacking across the ice on the Gulf of Riga. They killed every male they could, and the results of the terrible slaughter was still evident when we reached there. We went to the Gulf of Finland and joined a fleet of British ships. They took precautions of being torpedoed even at this late date, by lowering nets about the sides of each ship so that any torpedo approaching them would be exploded. St. Petersburg was our next port of call, followed by Voborg, Finland, then to Christiania. Here we found a very interesting city with a historical background. Everyone seemed prosperous, and the market places were very busy.

Copenhagen, Denmark, was our next stop and we found that a great many wealthy Russians had fled to this country to save their lives. The women here smoked small cigars while walking about town. The beer gardens were full at all times and the market places were very busy. The people spoke English as well as Danish, it was easy to converse with them but hard to buy anything, as they believed every American to be a sucker and raised the price on everything when they saw us coming.

From Copenhagen we went to Brest, France, and placed the coffins aboard a large ship at that port. King Albert of Belgium boarded this ship for his visit to the United States.

From France we sailed to the Azores, then to Bermuda. On the way to Bermuda we struck a bad storm, but finally reached Bermuda safely. After a week there for repairs we ran up the coast of the United States to New York city. Upon arriving in New York I received orders to report to the Navy Department. I stayed there a year. My duties were in the code and signal section where the decoding was done.

From Washington I was sent to the Boston Navy Yard as assistant to the Captain of the Yard. After a year in Boston I was transferred to the U. S. S. Vega, and we visited every port on the Atlantic coast. The U. S. S. Vega was a cargo ship, and from the Atlantic we went to the Pacific and all the ports along the West Coast. Then she left for Hawaii, Guam, Japan, and China, also the Philippine Islands, but that is another story so I will conclude by remarking that if a person joins the Navy they will see a great part of the world and it will not be through a port hole, as the expression goes.

The Post Office team has three games this week, to catch up with the others.

Games tonight are: Texaco vs. Dragons in Thomaston, and Kiwanis vs. Post Office, Rockland. Friday night game is Amoco vs. Post Office in Rockland.

The Post Office and A. & P. had to go eight innings to decide a battle last Wednesday. The government boys coming through with four tallies in the last inning to win 10 to 7. Ralph Dudley had two doubles, Higgins had a double and Palmer Pease a triple.

The Dragons, with cement in their shoes instead of their bats, fought a slightly uphill battle with the Elks Monday night. It was a score going into the last of the seventh, when Chief Oney, first up for Elks, smashed out a two batter that he stretched into a home run on Dragon errors. Result: Elks 9—Dragons 8. It is the first defeat suffered by the Dragons this season, but they still head the list.

The Texaco sky chiefs gave the Shells the runaway Monday night, bringing in 24 runs to the Shells five. Home runs, Carl Christoffersen 3, Triples, Dick French 3, Pooler, Doubles, Barstow, Thompson, Glover, Paladino Pooler.

VANDENBERG AND ROOSEVELT

Lead the Two Parties In Presidential Choice, Columbia Survey Shows

Editors of newspapers throughout the country declare "Big Four" lead in both parties: Bridges, Dewey, Taft and Vandenberg for G. O. P.; and Farley, Garner, Hull and Roosevelt for Democrats.

Arthur H. Vandenberg, United States Senator from Michigan, and President Franklin D. Roosevelt are now in the lead for the 1940 Republican and Democratic Presidential Nominations, respectively, according to the June nation-wide poll of the Columbia Survey, announced today. The Survey asked the editors of the leading newspapers throughout the country, who in their opinion, are the present leaders for the Presidential tickets of the two major parties.

The answers of America's editors, men and women who are in constant touch with the public opinion of their localities and regions, showed that a "Big Four" lead in the present favor of the American people on both sides of the political fence. Heading the G. O. P., the following Republicans stand out prominently in the June poll: Styles Bridges, United States Senator from New Hampshire and former Governor of the Granite State; Thomas E. Dewey, District Attorney of New York County and former Special Prosecutor of Rackets; Robert A. Taft, United States Senator from Ohio and son of the 27th President; and Senator Vandenberg, former Editor and Publisher of the Grand Rapids, Michigan, "Herald".

All of the four Democrats are high officials of the Roosevelt administration. Other 1940 presidential possibilities receiving support in the June poll include: (Democrats) Paul V. McNutt of Indiana, U. S. High Commissioner in the Philippines; Harry L. Hopkins of Iowa, Secretary of Commerce; Attorney General Frank Murphy of Michigan; Henry A. Wallace of Iowa, Secretary of Agriculture; Governor Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri; and (Republicans) Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio; Representative Bruce Barton of New York; Governor George D. Aiken of Vermont. One percent of the editors at the present time believe a "dark horse," not now leading, will win one or both party presidential nominations next June.

Winning first place for the Republican nomination, Vandenberg is the first choice of 33 percent. In the second place and close to the Michigan Senator is Dewey with 31 percent. Third of the Republican Big Four is Senator Taft with 14 percent. Fourth is Styles Bridges, with 12 percent. In addition to naming the leaders for the two nominations the editors of American newspapers were asked to rank the outstanding candidates for the respective nominations in the order they considered their present strength. For second choice in the ranking for the Republican nomination, Vandenberg again led with 25 percent, with Taft next with 17 percent, followed by Dewey and Bridges. In the complete total of various rankings, the results were the same as in the choice for first place. Vandenberg, Dewey, Taft, and Bridges in that order were named most, respectively, receiving 76%, 68%, 67% and 40%.

The first place for the Democratic nomination went to President Roosevelt with 35 percent, followed in order by Garner with 31 percent, Hull with 12 percent and Farley with 3 percent. In the totals of the rankings according to their respective strengths, Roosevelt and Garner received equal mention, followed by Hull in third place and Farley, fourth. For second choice, however, Hull is ahead with 25 percent. Next comes Garner with 17 percent and Farley with 10 percent.

In answer to the question as to which nominee, Democratic or Republican, they now think will win the Presidency in 1940, 63 percent of the editors told the Survey they believe at the present time that the nominee of the Republican National Convention 12 months hence will take possession of the White House in January, 1941. Twenty-four percent think the Democratic nominee will be elected; the rest are not sure or preferred to make no clear-cut prediction at this time. An interesting phase to the answers to this question was the fact that 64 percent of those editors who believe President Roosevelt will be renominated think the Republican nominee will be elected. Sixty-two percent of those who picked Senator Vandenberg as now leading for the Republican nomination believe that the G. O. P. nominee will be victorious.

The eight leaders of the Columbia Survey's June poll of the strength of 1940 presidential possibilities, as measured by the nation's newspaper editors, include three New Yorkers, one New Englander, two Southerners and two residents of mid-western States. Four of the eight, including three of the Republican Big Four, are or have been United States Senators: Bridges, Hull, Taft and Vandenberg. All of the four Democrats are high officials of the Roosevelt administration.

Other 1940 presidential possibilities receiving support in the June poll include: (Democrats) Paul V. McNutt of Indiana, U. S. High Commissioner in the Philippines; Harry L. Hopkins of Iowa, Secretary of Commerce; Attorney General Frank Murphy of Michigan; Henry A. Wallace of Iowa, Secretary of Agriculture; Governor Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri; and (Republicans) Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio; Representative Bruce Barton of New York; Governor George D. Aiken of Vermont. One percent of the editors at the present time believe a "dark horse," not now leading, will win one or both party presidential nominations next June.

THE SAUNTERER

A. B. Crocker

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

From my own log of the voyage of Sch. Challenge in 1882: May 21—

Nantasket Roads, Boston Harbor. Got under way and took our departure for Block Island, Rhode Island.

At dark made Race Point, Cape Cod Light. The captain decided to keep going rather than change his course for Provincetown. Had he done so, it would have been just another "lumber hooker" coming in out of the net.

Now let us go back to Nov. 21, 1820 (N. S.) and see what happened Sept. 16—Ship Mayflower, Jones, master, sailed from the port of Plymouth, England, for the New World; 102 persons on board; one death and one birth on the voyage.

After a tempestuous voyage, at daybreak Nov. 20 came the cry, "Land ho!" Capt. Jones called it Cape Cod and changed his course to pass around it to the Hudson. After running that course for half a day, the ship was in the shoals off the elbow of the Cape. Toward evening the wind hauled ahead, the ship sailed to clear water to pass the light.

The Pilgrims decided upon putting into Cape Cod Harbor (now Provincetown) where the ship arrived Nov. 21. In the cabin of the Mayflower on that date was signed the "Compact" (Bancroft, the historian, writes, "This was the birthplace of popular constitutional liberty"). Just what would have happened if Capt. Jones had kept on his course and gone around Cape Cod, one does not know. It is known, however, that there would have been no settlement at Plymouth and no Plymouth Colony.

Governors of the Plymouth Colony were: 1620, John Carver; 1621, William Bradford; 1623, Edward Winslow, last Governor of the Colony; 1629-1632, Thomas Hinckley, then the union with the Massachusetts Bay Colony in 1630.

Governors of the Massachusetts Bay Colony were: 1629, Matthew Cradock, never came over; 1629, John Endicott, Salem, Mass.; 1629, John Winthrop, Charlestown, Mass.; 1639, Leverett Saltonstall, speaker of the House, 1629-34. One Leverett Saltonstall was President of the Senate of Massachusetts in 1931.

There was constant friction between the Plymouth and Massachusetts Bay Colonies. In 1631 a person had to have a passport in order to travel between the colonies. Gov. Bradford received a letter complaining that the Plymouth Colony was harboring people from the Massachusetts Bay Colony without a passport. Gov. Bradford held the letter for six months and replied.

It certainly is a model of good letter writing: "To our worshipful and good friends, Mr. Winthrop, Governor of Massachusetts and the rest of the Council there." The Governor then takes up point by point the complaints and finished: "Thus with our prayers to the Lord for your prosperity as our own, and our hearty salutations unto all, we rest your assured loving friends, William Bradford, John Alden, Thomas Prentice, Myles Standish and Samuel Fuller. The retort courteous. N. C. C. 2

With The Grangers

New Jersey Grange members are very proud of the fact that the congressman from the second district of that state, Hon. Walter S. Jeffries, is an active member of Bargaintown Grange, No. 203. Congressman Jeffries' recent selection as a member of the important Naval Affairs committee of the House led to the adoption of a message of congratulation by his fellow members in Bargaintown Grange.

At a Juvenile Grange rally just outside the city of Boston, Mass., five elaborately costumed teams of these youthful members put on a competitive drill that drew an attendance of fully 500 people and proved one of the most enthusiastic Grange occasions held in the Bay State this year. Altogether more than 100 Grange children figured in the several drills and the work they did on the floor would have been highly creditable to the most thoroughly trained adults.

A speaker at a recent anniversary meeting of Oak Hill Grange at Attleboro, Mass., was a member who had just passed his 90th birthday.

To live 65 years is no slight achievement, be it an individual or a group, and the strength of the Grange is significantly proven by the fact that during the present year many subordinate units are celebrating their 65th anniversary of continuous activity. Among the states in which such celebrations have recently taken place are Maine, Maryland, New Hampshire, New York and Vermont and a few of these occasions were honored by the presence of charter signers at the institutions six and one-half decades ago, some of whom have been continuous in their Grange membership during all these years.

The latest addition to the Hall of Fame in the Capitol at Washington is a fine bronze statue of the late Will Rogers, the popular humorist, who was killed in a flying accident a few years ago. The statue was presented by his native state of Oklahoma. Rogers had Indian blood in his veins, and one of his jokes was to the effect that his ancestors did not come over with the Pilgrims in the Mayflower—they met them at the boat," he said.

The general level of prices paid for farm products during the middle of May was one point higher than a month earlier, according to the price index of the Department of Agriculture. Prices received by farmers in local markets throughout the United States stood at 90 percent of the pre-war average; prices paid by farmers on all commodities purchased averaged 120, making the ratio of prices received to prices paid 75 percent of pre-war. The wages paid to hired help on the farm now average 121 percent of pre-war, while the industrial wage level is at 211.

The Department of Agriculture has authorized the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation to buy an additional 25,000,000 pounds of surplus butter before June 30 for distribution among needy families through state relief agencies.

SOUTH WARREN

One of the State's tarring crews is camped in C. H. Woodcock's field. Miss Clara Penny of Bronville, N. Y., is spending a three weeks' vacation at the Libby Homestead. W. C. Leavitt accompanied his son John Leavitt of Marblehead, Mass., Tuesday to Dark Harbor where the latter is delivering a boat. Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Libby, Mrs. Rachel Overlock and son Leland, Mrs. Jeannette Robinson and Mrs. Eunice Bean attended the exercises Monday at the opening of the Deer Isle Bridge. They were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Haskell on the island. Elmer Fulton and family, C. J. Copeland and family, and Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Barrett motored Sunday to Cadillac, Mt.

Farm Chats

Farmers who store grass or legume silage sometimes find it necessary to add extra hoops to their silos, since grass silage exerts a pressure on the sides of the silo about fifty percent greater than does corn silage.

More than 500,000 hired hands were added to farm pay rolls during the first quarter of 1939. The April 1 total was 2,187,000 hired hands compared with 1,629,000 on January 1, and with 2,287,000 on April 1 last year. Wage rates averaged the same as on April 1 last year—121 percent of the pre-war level. Farm employment usually reaches a seasonal peak in June and again in October.

Farmers in the town of Sherman are engaged in the largest co-operative seed potato program ever undertaken in Aroostook County. This year they have planted between sixty and seventy acres of potatoes by the tuber unit method as foundation stock for a crop of certified seed potatoes in 1940. Next year the whole community will be raising certified seed.

Frank D. Reed, extension poultry specialist, College of Agriculture, University of Maine, suggests four ways in which poultrymen may keep down costs of feeding their birds. They are: Make more use of green sod ranges, raise more grain, feed limited quantities of cull potatoes, and change the formula of scratch grain in accordance with price changes.

M. G. Huber, extension agricultural engineer, University of Maine, has just prepared a mimeographed circular on fill insulation for farm buildings. He describes the various materials used for this purpose, both commercial and non-commercial, and gives directions for their proper use. One may secure this information by writing the College of Agriculture, Orono and asking for agricultural engineering circular Number 1, "Fill Insulation for Farm Buildings."

To Bar Poor Bulls

Production Inheritance As Well As Pure Blood Is Required

Establishment of a "super registration" system for purebred Jersey bulls descended from outstanding ancestors, and a decision to bar bulls of inferior breeding from its registry books by means of "selective registration" were announced today by The American Jersey Cattle Club, national organization of Jersey cattle breeders, at the close of the 71st annual convention here.

Extensive statistical research into the question of the transmittal of production genius through Jersey males assures the practicability of the plan, according to Lewis W. Morley, executive secretary of the Club, which is America's oldest dairy cattle registry association. Although long debated in dairy breed circles, and advocated by leading dairy scientists as a progressive step toward elimination of unworthy animals from purebred breeding, the action of the Jersey breeders to restrict registrations is the first of its kind in America.

"Super registration," a means of conveniently identifying Jersey bulls of superior breeding, will become effective on July 1, next. Participation in this project is optional with America's 50,000 breeders of Jersey cattle.

"Selective registration," the compulsory part of the breed's new program, becomes effective Jan. 1, 1942, giving breeders ample time to prepare for conforming with the new rule.

"In this action, the oldest of America's purebred registry associations again takes the lead for the improvement of the nation's dairy breeding stock," commented Perry B. Gaines of Carrollton, Ky., president of The American Jersey Cattle Club. "One strong criticism of our pedigree record associations has been laxity in registration requirements. Too often animals of inferior ancestry have received certificates solely because their sires and dams were registered. Such certificates are offered by the breeder and accepted by the purchaser as guarantees of the animal's worth."

"Originally organized in 1868 to maintain the purity of the Jersey breed in America and improving its quality, The American Jersey Cattle Club prepared the way for today's action by establishing its production testing projects in 1933, followed a decade ago by its herd classification program," president Gaines continued. "Now it is felt that the Jersey breed is ready for this next step, by reason of which a bull's registration certificate in the future will have more definite meaning than ever before adoption of the added requirements."

Although enacted together, and although both projects are intended for breed improvement through the male half of the herd, the two plans are entirely different in their operation. The "super registration" plan makes it possible to give recognition to young bulls on the basis of their production record. From one to four stars appearing upon the registration certificates of animals eligible for recognition will sum up the entire pedigree of a given animal for the convenience of breeders in evaluating the worth of a "starred" Jersey bull. Standards of production and type, or conformation, of ancestors will be credited according to a graduated scale of points.

In the restrictive part of the program, or "selective registration," bulls to be admitted as purebreds eligible for the official certificate must be backed up by ancestry of proved ability, either the requirements for the sire are that he be proved in a dairy herd improvement association with daughters averaging 400 or more pounds of butterfat, or that he be recognized by The American Jersey Cattle Club as a tested sire whose daughters average 500 pounds of butterfat in 365 days. The record of the dam of a young bull proposed for registration will also be accepted. She must have a mature equivalent production of 400 pounds of butterfat in ten months.

Bells Of Rockland

As Seen From The Poetic Viewpoint—They Have Their Stories

That really is a poetic line in its entirety. Did you ever notice the different tones in the bells of this city, and how one bell will have an insistent call which all should have; another, a placid, dreamy tone; another, brisk and efficient; while another has a heavy indomitable call to whatever its ringing is supposed to suggest. Who can give the history of the bells?

Paul Revere made the sweet-toned bell that hangs in the meeting house belfry on the hill at Thomaston. A few years ago a fine old bell was removed from the belfry of the church that is now owned and used by the Christian Science members. What became of that sweet-toned old bell and whence came it to Rockland?

When on a clear, quiet Sabbath morning and all the church bells are ringing at once, one's heart is lifted in an ecstasy of praise and joy in their harmoniously merged tones calling to prayer. I have a very dear friend who has made a collection of small bells from all parts of the world. She gets much joy out of these little messengers of call.

Friends know of her love and interest in bells and she can ring a vibrant tone brought all the way from Hindustani or South America. Bells in the pattern of the mission bells of the early Spanish Missions are in her collection and bells that sheep have worn on the hills of the old world. There is poetry and even pageantry in the ringing of bells.

Deeply regretted and missed are the clear tones of St. Bernard's Church bell whose discontinued ringing was because of the effect on the church structure. I used to listen with deep interest to its regular tones of call at stated periods. There was a spiritual note in that bell suggestive of pause and reflection.

And the Lime Rock Railroad had bells that rang the danger signal for highway crossing that suggested chanting; and again the switch engines have gentle toned bells for their work, and harbor bells clang out the different calls to attention. The Baptist Church bell is heard most often because of the Butler clock that is a good time piece for all and a reminder of that high hearted and public spirited gentleman who thought for the future comforts with his generous gift.

How many songs are written around and about bells. As one sings them, one feels the sweet vibrations in the heart. Who is not

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk. A mass bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25 cents. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

Knox-Lincoln Farm Bureau

Agriculture

M. F. Lofman of Rockville, one of the largest blueberry growers in the county, has bought one of the latest blueberry winnowing machines. The machine was built for Mr. Lofman by Emil Rivers of Rockland.

Max Turner of the Bureau of Biological Survey was in the district last week checking on mouse injury to fruit trees with County Agent Wentworth. He visited orchards in Jefferson and Hope. Very little mouse injury was found as most of the men had used poison bait obtained from the county agent last fall.

Recently in Hope nearly all the orchardists were applying the calyx spray and sprayers could be heard in all directions. Over half the sprayers in the two counties are located in Hope. Men owning power sprayers are: Howard Coose, Frank Payson, E. N. Hobbs, John Wilson, Jr., Wallace Robbins, Herbert Brown, A. P. Allen, Ralph Pearce, and Allie Dunton. The last of this week the men will be applying the first cover spray. This will be followed with the apple fruit fly spray which should be applied about July 4.

E. B. Denny, Round Top Farms, Damariscotta reports that he has started on his grass silage. Ben Nichols of Hope is going to start next week, and D. E. Andrews, Jefferson reports that he expects to start next week. All three put up grass silage last year.

With The Homes

"Home Lighting" will be the subject of the agent meetings this week.

June 22, Tenants Harbor, at Mrs. Claribel Andrews'. Mrs. Pearl Wall and Mrs. Rachel Crockett are on the dinner committee.

June 23, Friendship, at Mrs. Gertrude Oliver's. Mrs. Helen Simmons and Mrs. Oliver are on the dinner committee.

Leader meetings this week and next are as follows:
June 22, Montsweag, "Color in the Kitchen," in charge of Mrs. Gertrude Munsey at her home. Mrs. Madeline Colby and Mrs. Flora Munsey will serve the square meal for health.

June 23, North Edgecomb, at the school house. The subject will be "Good Grooming," in charge of Mrs. Nellie Clifford. Mrs. Ruth Haggert and Mrs. Metta Anderson are in charge of the dinner.

June 23, Edgecomb, "Construction and Finishes," in charge of Mrs. Mary Dunton. Mrs. Ruth Sprague, Miss Anna Winslow, Mrs. Gwendolyn Dunton and Mrs. Poole will serve dinner.

June 28, Alna, "Construction and Finishes" at Erskine hall, conducted by Mrs. Alice Packard. Mrs. Grace Jones and Mrs. Dorothy Carleton will have charge of the square meal for health.

Playground Aids Busy Mothers

A summer playground for small children will add to their pleasure and well being and also prove of real assistance to busy mothers. The play yard need not be large and equipment need not be expensive.

All children love to play in the sand, so a sand box equipped with spoons and shovels, pans and pails, cups and sieves will delight little tots hours at a time. Of course, they need variety and change, and some equipment that will give them exercise in addition to the quieter pastime of playing in the sand.

A strong, wide board, placed flat on low supports at each end, and nailed to them solidly is good for jumping up and down on, and gives children all the thrills of any spring board. A low swing and a seesaw make good play equipment, too.

A pre-school clinic will be held at the church vestry in Bristol, June 30, sponsored by the Farm Bureau in co-operation with the State Department of Health. Miss Phyllis Sutherland, State field nurse, and a doctor will be present to examine the children and the home demonstration agent, Esther Dunham, will help mothers on any nutrition problem.

4-H Club Notes

Winners in the baking and style dress revue contests, Saturday:

June 17, which were at the church vestry in Nobleboro were: Baking—Drummond Giles, Boothbay, 1st; and Dorothy Ingraham, Camden, and Flora Traak, Jefferson, both received honorable mention. In Style Dress Revue, the winner was Margaret Laine of West Alna, 1st; and Harriet and Josephine Stover, Boothbay, both honorable mention. The winners will be entitled to a trip to State 4-H Club Camp at the University of Maine next August where they will again compete with other county winners for state championship.

The Amateur Farmers 4-H club, with their leader Henry Kontio, met at Charles Heald's home June 18. The Club Agent, Lucinda Rich, conducted a contest on judging dry beans. Daniel Andrews will be awarded the judging ribbon for receiving the highest score. "The Farm Garden" was the title of a film strip shown by the club agent which illustrated many practices used in garden work. After the meeting, everyone enjoyed refreshments and games.

Twenty-four club members, parents and friends attended the ninth meeting this year of the Mountain Top Maids of Razorville, June 15, at Mrs. Archie Lenfest's home. Each member brought an exhibit of her work—room improvement articles, sewing, and cooking. Following the business meeting, the club agent helped each girl with her record sheet. Mrs. Lenfest served cake and ice-cream. A recreation period of singing and games followed.

The Thomaston Happy Homemakers learned how to make desserts from whole grain cereals at a meeting, June 14, at the home of their leader, Mrs. Pearl MacFarland. Refreshments and games were in order following the meeting.

The Blue-Bird 4-H club of Damariscotta Mills, a newly organized club, met with their leader, Mrs. Lorain Nilsen, June 15. Plans were made for a candy sale and a social in order to raise money to go to 4-H Field Day. Each girl started on her project notebook. Sandwiches and fruit punch were served and a program was presented as planned by the recreation committee.

A MAID CALLED MILLS

Whom You Will Take To Your Heart When She Talks About Household Matters

BROADCAST BY MARJORIE MILLS

(Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at 1.30 p. m. over Stations WNAC Boston; WTAG, Worcester; WCHS, Portland; WTIC, Hartford; WICC Bridgeport; WEAN, Providence; and WLBZ, Bangor).

The Yankee Cook Book edited by Imogene Wolcott is off the press and we predict even dyed-in-the-wool New Englanders will find it a complete satisfaction and a sheer delight.

It's a "veritable Bible of Down East delicacies," as House and Garden designated it but it's far more than that. There's something of the sturdy unpretentiousness and quaint charm of Yankee himself about the very format of the book. Photographs such as Family at Supper and "After the Day's Work" tug at your heart strings as truly New England; footnotes interspersed liberally throughout the book record at last in print the wealth of quaint tradition about food, odd bits of folk lore and yarns that could originate nowhere but in our own neck of the woods.

At the title page of the Yankee Cook Book states it's "an anthology of incomparable recipes from six

New England states and a little something about the people whose tradition for Good Eating is herein permanently recorded." From the "Foretaste" by Wilbur Cross to the Glossary of cooking terms and New England Colloquialisms we found the book an unqualified joy.

The amazing nomenclature of New England dishes is preserved for posterity along with the recipes. "H en and Beans," "Jolly Boys," "Holy Pokes," "Scoutin'-Long-The Shore," "Old Salem Smash," "Anadama Bread" and "Souise" are a few of the weirdly christened edibles that will intrigue your curiosity. As far as possible the family names and a bit of the history are given with the many contributed recipes, giving the book decided flavor and interest.

Files of Yankee Magazine have yielded much lore for the Yankee Cook Book, among other things the quiz with answers on Yankee expressions. You may test your ability to define a piggin, a skeel, a noggin, a porgy, a squintague and bean swagger. Can you qualify?

Special articles have been contributed by Laura E. Richards who reminisces about State of Maine food. Joseph Lincoln does a bit on chowders; Sydney Woodbridge on a Vermont "sugaring off" and Clarence M. Webster's dry account of a Church Supper we thought priceless. Many recipes for beverages have been contributed by Russell Codman and Ella Shannon Bowles has a chapter on Old New England dishes.

No cut and dried listing of the contents of the Yankee Cook Book gives an adequate idea of its flavor for at the bottom of some page you'll stumble across the anecdote like that of the Vermonters who opined "tripe's all right but allus seemed to me 'twas eating the critter up too clus." We insist you'll read the Yankee Cook Book for sheer enjoyment and then use it constantly as a practical guide to the sort of food New Englanders enjoy and cherish.

Imogene Wolcott who directs Homemakers Service For First National Stores and broadcasts daily over the Yankee network has tested all the recipes included and directions are careful and complete and brought up to modern standards of accuracy. She has given Yankees a cook book they may well be proud of. As you may gather, we're keen about the book.

Scalloped Cod Cheeks and Tongues

(From a Yankee Cook Book)

2 pounds of cod cheeks
2 tablespoons Land O Lakes butter
2 cups white thin sauce
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Salt and pepper
1 cup bread crumbs

If cheeks and tongues have been salted, they must be soaked overnight. Drain. Simmer 5 minutes in fresh water. Drain. Saute in butter. Make white sauce, add lemon juice, season to taste. Place fish in a baking dish, pour on white sauce, sprinkle bread crumbs over top, dot with butter and bake in a hot oven (400 F.) until crumbs are brown.

Windor Pie

1 1/2 cups chopped cooked ham, some fat included
3 cups drained, cooked macaroni
6 common crackers, crushed
2 tablespoons Land O Lakes butter
3 cups milk

Place the chopped meat in well-buttered baking dish. Place cooked macaroni on top of meat, then crackers. Pour milk over the crackers, slowly wetting the whole top surface. Add milk until all of mixture is covered. Dot with butter. Bake in a slow oven (300 F.) about 1 hour, or until milk is absorbed and top nicely browned. Serves 4. Serve with coleslaw.

Corned beef or well-seasoned chopped cold meat of any kind may be used in place of ham. Minced onion and seasonings should be added to chopped beef or lamb.

Coolidge Lemon Custard Pie

2 eggs, separated
Juice and grated rind of 1 lemon
1 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons flour
1 teaspoon melted Land O Lakes butter
1 cup milk

Beat the egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. Add the lemon juice and rind, sugar, salt, flour, and milk. Last, fold in the egg whites, beaten stiff. Pour into an unbaked pastry shell with the edges fluted and bake in a hot oven (450 F.) 10 minutes; reduce heat to moderate and bake 20 minutes.

Sunshine Strawberries

Fine flavored, large strawberries are most delicious when preserved in the sunshine. Hull, measure and allow an equal quantity of sugar. Dissolve the sugar in just enough water to melt it, then cook it almost to the thread stage. Add berries and simmer gently about 10 minutes or until fruit is tender. Do not stir; try to keep the fruit whole. Pour strawberries onto large platters or shallow pans, cover with mosquito netting or glass and stand in the hot sunshine for 2 to 3 days when mixture should thicken and jelly. Bring in each night. Put into sterilized jars and seal with paraffin.

Sweet pitted cherries, raspberries and blackberries may be preserved in the same way. Fruit may also be dried in a very slow oven instead of by sunshine.

Poultry Outlook

Production Is Heavy—Egg and Feed Prices Are Out of Kilter

Highlights

Price level and business activity sag.

Continued heavy egg production. About five percent more layers (May 1) than a year ago.

About five percent more young chickens on farms than last year.

Relationship between egg and feed prices less favorable.

The peak in egg receipts apparently will come about a month later this year than last. Total April chick production for commercial hatcheries was about 16 percent larger than in April last year and the largest production for any month on record.

April was the seventh consecutive month in which current hatchings have been larger than those of the corresponding month of the preceding year. Poultry marketings will probably continue heavier than in 1938, due to more old birds on farms and a larger hatch of both turkeys and chicks.

Receipts usually reach a low point in April and increase from that date until December.

There is some speculation as to possibilities of government buying of eggs. The out-of-storage movement of frozen poultry probably reached its seasonal peak in April.

The feed-egg ratio (number of dozen eggs required to buy a certain quantity of feed), is rising, that is, it requires more eggs to buy the same quantity of feed. This ratio normally rises from December to June. It was more favorable in April this year than a year ago in all sections of the country. The final May figures, however, will probably show the reverse.

Egg prices usually remain about the same from April 15 to June 15. This year egg prices have remained around the 22 cent level (Boston) since Jan. 15.

Poultry prices will be influenced by the large amount of storage turkey and by the prospective increase in turkey production.

A Delightful Book

Agnes Rothery's "Norway: Changing and Changeless" Reviewed By Mrs. Heistad

Readers—and travelers by the printed word—who have enjoyed Agnes Rothery's "Sweden: The Land and the People," "Denmark: Kingdom of Reason" and "Finland: The New Nation," will welcome with open arms her new volume entitled "Norway: Changing and Changeless."

Because Miss Rothery so thoroughly enjoys herself in foreign lands and is so eager to have others share her pleasure, because she is a skillful and alert tourist as well as an accomplished writer, her books have risen out of the class of casual travel books and have become permanent records of the countries she describes. Each summer, for several years now, she and her husband, Harry Rogers Pratt, have closed their house on the University of Virginia grounds, and have set sail for new lands. Mr. Pratt becomes cameraman for the expeditions and returns with bundles of photographs to embellish his wife's books. They have been in almost every corner of the earth, but Scandinavia is their greatest love, and Agnes Rothery's books on this remarkably happy section of Europe have won her greatest fame.

In her book on the land of Ibsen and Nansen, Miss Rothery traces the history of the country from the romantic legend-history of the Vikings to the modern industrial and agricultural nation of today. She pictures the great fjords along the coast, the mountain valleys inland, and its mighty cascades everywhere. She takes us to the tiny hillside farms, walking across the beautiful highland pastures where the flocks roam at will. She gives us glimpses of daring fishing fleets that dart out from the tight little harbors. She shows that, though the land holds to its ancient ways, the cities are alive to the ideas of a changing world. She combines in a clever way the simple lives of an industrial people with the achievements of the nation's great artists—Ibsen, Grieg, Undset, and the others. And the spirit of the land creeps into the pages—from the fertile meadows in the South to the strange frozen world of Spitsbergen in the North.

But it must be borne in mind that Miss Rothery's responses are not merely those of an artist. She has understood the significance of the giant hydro-electric plants which provide the comforts of electricity in the entire length of the land, even to the humblest cottage in the tiniest hamlet. She has looked into the holds of the fishing fleet and marveled at the yearly catch. She has explored the economic and political organization, and learned the blessings of the co-operative way. And she has admired the steadfast purpose which has enabled the Norwegians to maintain sanity and dignity of government in a day when those virtues are becoming rare.

It can be truly said, as it has been said of her previous books, that "Norway" is both a valuable guide to the traveler and a fascinating story for the general reader. The topography of the country and the personality of the people are thoughtfully and clearly set down, the various aspects of Norwegian life brought out with the infectious enthusiasm of one for whom travel is a constant stimulus. The photographs by the author's husband are always original and personal as well as professional, for they display a high degree of camera art as well as a quick appreciation for the beauties of the land.

The volume is profusely illustrated, fully indexed, and contains appendix and bibliographical material for the serious student as well as the general reader. It is a publication of the Viking Press.
